

Communicate on a Budget: Free and Cheap Communication Tools

AJ Huff, Coordinator of School-Community Relations, Madison Local School District
Vice President of Communications, Ohio School Public Relations Association

The shift in the way society receives information electronically along with current budget constraints present a need and opportunity to utilize unique, and cost-effective tools to reach internal and external audiences. AJ Huff, school public relations specialist will share inexpensive and free 21st century communication tools that have been successfully implemented by schools and Project SEARCH programs.
